Bhavan's Book University

The Bhavan reaches out to the world through its value-based publications members over 1800 under the banner, Bhavan's Book University. This includes the publication of its fortnightly journal, Bhavan's Journal, and other periodicals.

Bhavan's Swami Prakashananda Ayurveda Research Centre (SPARC)

Swami Prakashananda Ayurveda Research Centre (SPARC), which was established in 1985 under Bhavan's major project on Ancient Insights and Modern Discoveries is engaged in clinical services, research/development and education in Ayurveda & Life/Health Sciences.

The contribution of Ayurveda to the world of medicine were highlighted at the presentation to the select Committee of the House of Lords on Science and Technology, London. The Committee had confessed ignorance about the willingness to understand current Indian scientific contribution in research in Ayurveda. Ayurveda was reclassified into grade 1, instead of 3, after the presentations.

Bhavan's SPARC has been accredited as an advanced research centre by the Ministry of Health, ISM & H, Government of India.

SPARC's multi-system multi-disciplinary faculty is engaged in the following areas :

- (a) Medicinal plants - Research
- (b) Chronic diseases
- (c) Special projects
- (d) Academic programmes

The Test of Bhavan's Right to Exist

The test of Bhavan's right to exist is whether those who work for it in different spheres and in different places and those who study in its many institutions can develop a sense of mission as would enable them to translate the fundamental values, even in a small measure, into their individual life.

Creative vitality of a culture consists in this: whether the 'best' among those who belong to it, however small their number, find self-fulfilment by living up to the fundamental values of our ageless culture.

It must be realised that the history of the world is a story of men who had faith in themselves and in their mission. When an age does not produce men of such faith, its culture is on its way to extinction.

The real strength of the Bhavan, therefore, would lie not so much in the number of its buildings or institutions it conducts, nor in the volume of its assets and budgets, nor even in its growing publication, cultural and educational activities. It would lie in the character, humility, selflessness and dedicated work of its devoted workers, honorary and stipendiary. They alone can release the regenerative influences, bringing into play the invisible pressure which alone can transform human nature
